A crew was put on board and she was worked into Newport, B I. Here it was found that several holes had been borod in her run through to the water, and it is believed they were made with the design of sinking the vessel. The matter was placed in the shades of the Barbot Police and Detective Ledge, of the chief of office Saturday, the caster cumina ed in the Sarreat of De. saturasy, the catter culmina of in the arrest of David Carter, the mais act shree washings by the Histor Police, and the captain; whose name is Elsen T. Purifies the Blood.

FROM WBICH MANKIND SUFFER over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a discassed action in the system, induced by the poison one miasm of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and riscs with the watery expor from it.—
While the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the carth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscers and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and falls to secrete not only this virus, but she the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder.

Which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and atimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afficing disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to fuses subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is apported, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the cystem in beath although expected to the disease. THE DAILY NEWS.

from day to day, it may be exposed. Among the races that compose the Empire 7,000,000 Germans are to be found, and as long as they cannot be exterminated a certain respect for German interests must form one of the principal problems of Austrian policy. For the condition of Austria would be most unhealthy if 7,000,000 of her citizens were compolled actively to participate in a policy of national treason. And there can be no doubt that to invite France to assist in the decision of any German question would be national treason. An Austrian Minister who was guilty of such an act would End among the Germans no accomplice, among the Magyars no ass stant, and even among the Sleaves violent osponents. With whom, then, could be carry out his so-called Austrian policy, whose forces could he employ, on whose soif-sacrifice could he reck. or? He could only depend on France, as the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico did.

The North German Gezette makes the following observations on the speech of the Austrian Chancellor: "Count Benst defended personally in the Austrian Delegation the foreign policy of the Cabinet of Vienns, after it had been criticised by ten previous speakers. The discourse of the Chancellor must have satisfied his auditors in point of length, at least, however exacting in this particular they may have been. We should have thought that the multifurious effusions of Count Benst for some time past had left him very little room for novelty, but the inexhaustible roscurces of the Austrian statesman and journalist shame all such short-sighted calculations, and the world has to thank him again for many a surprise. Among those we must mention, as meriting the first place, the explanations given by the orator about the purpose which the Red-Books were to serve, and the cause of the 'stom of criticism' which these publications have always conjured up. We may mention, en passant, that if we are to credit Count Benst, it is sheer easy and jeclumsy if the press of Germany, England, Haly, Russia, or any other country, express sia, or any other country, expresses an unfavorable opinion of the Red-Books; it is simply an attempt to destroy the pleasure which the Austrians naturally feel in pursuing these delectable productions; no other object can possibly be conceived. This is not bal, but when we come to the information , youch-safed us as to the other great design of the Red Books we fied something still better. They are to serve, we are told, as a corrective for the polemics of journalism on the foreign policy of Austria—which is, in fact, equivalent to saying that the sole use of these productions is to supply materials for newspaper articles. How much, then, must the Vienna journals be mistaken which maintain, in their ignorant defence of the Red-Book, that its publication was intended to enlighten the delegations respecting the foreign policy of the monarchy. The Chancellor, it appears, is aware that the dead season is a metancholy time for journalists, and he humanely composes ited-Books to assist editors in their difficult tief of filling their columns.

friendly relations between Austria and Prussia, quotes the fellowing passage from the Nene Wiener Tageblatt: "In our opinion," says the Austrian paper, "Count Beust has no other course to pursue than to make known the steps he had taken, and to publish all the dispatches, notes and other deplomatic documents even should they be of a confidential character—which demonstrate that it was, in fact, Count Bismarck who has thrown obstacles in the way of a cordial understanding between Vienna and Berlin." The Provinzial Correspondenz adds: "Such is the language of the Austrian journal. The Prussian government, on its side, has addressed a communication to Vienna, in which the same demand is categorically made."

Southern Prostering the result of the rapid rate at which the South is recovering her former agricultural and commercial prosperity. The cotton crop this year will be 3,000,000 bales, worth fully $300 000 000, that of corn will amount to 285,000 000 bushels, worth $200 -000,000 at least, and surar, wheat, tobacce and other productions will yield $150,000 000 more, making a total of $550,000,000, which, among a population of 11,000,000 is nearly $60 per head all round. Southern land at its present low price is one of the best investments in the market.—New York Sun.

Then the Fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and ruches to the surface, as it in another effort to expel the irritating polson intouch that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system standons the sttempt extraorder, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day.
